SHRAWAN EXPRESS

MAGICAL TALE

Once upon a time in a small town in India, there lived two young kids, brother Chikoo and sister Cherry. They were the best of friends and shared a secret, they had magical powers!

One sunny afternoon, while playing in their backyard, Chikoo tossed a pebble and said, “Hey Cherry, do you remember the hidden map we found some time back?” Cherry’s eyes sparkled. “Of course, I do! The one with all the magical places marked on it?” Chikoo grinned. “Yes! Why don’t we use our powers to visit the first place on the map - Indijoy Land ?

Cherry clapped her hands in excitement, and with a magical wave of their hands, they transported themselves to the entrance of Indijoy Land.

SHRAVAN EXPRESS

Chikoo nodded eagerly. “I know! Let’s start with that ride over there – it says ‘Shravan Express.’” They hurried over and saw a futuristic ride.

On the signboard was drawn what seemed like two big baskets, and a young boy standing in the middle, carrying the baskets on his shoulders.

Cherry looked at the sign and read aloud, “Shravan Kumar, the dutiful son who carried his blind parents on a pilgrimage.” Chikoo’s eyes widened. “Carried them? On his shoulders? How could he do that?”

A friendly ride operator heard Chikoo and smiled. “You’ll see! Hop on and feel what it was like.”

Chikoo and Cherry are standing at the entrance, looking excited and curious, with Chikoo slightly ahead, reaching out to the entrance, while Cherry is glancing around in wonder.

The background shows a bustling amusement park atmosphere with other visitors and various attractions.

Chapter-4

RIDE THROUGH THE JUNGLE

The futuristic ride, carrying Chikoo and Cherry, is moving through a lush, dense jungle. The ride is sleek, with bright lights, contrasting with the deep greens of the trees and foliage.

Chikoo and Cherry are visible through a window, looking fascinated and pointing at the surroundings. The scene is from a distance to capture the vastness of the jungle, with layers of trees, vines, and occasional glimpses of exotic wildlife.

Chikoo and Cherry took their seats, feeling a slight weight on their shoulders as if they were carrying someone.

The ride moved, mimicking the motion of walking through a jungle, climbing hills, and crossing rivers.

Cherry giggled as the ride started to sway gently. “This feels so real, Chikoo! Look, we’re moving through a dense jungle! Chikoo pointed to the giant screen ahead, showing Shravan Kumar walking through thick, lush forests. “And listen to those birds! It’s like we’re really there.

”Suddenly, the ride jolted and began to rise. Cherry grabbed Chikoo’s arm. “Whoa! Are we going uphill?”

The narrator's voice boomed, “Shravan’s journey wasn’t easy. He had to climb steep hills with his parents on his shoulders.

”Cherry felt the ride tilt forward. “Oh my, this is hard! I can feel how heavy it must have been!” Chikoo grinned, “You’re right! I’m starting to sweat, and we’re not even halfway there!”

Chapter-5

SHRAWAN CROSSING A RIVER

As they ascended, the screen showed Shravan climbing over rocks and boulders, sweat dripping down his face.

The air turned cooler, and they could hear the sound of rushing water. Cherry looked around in wonder. “Look! There’s a river ahead!” The ride dipped suddenly, and they felt like they were sliding down a slope. Chikoo laughed. “Whee! We’re going down to the riverbank!” It was like a roller coaster ride , but with a difference.

As they reached the bottom, the ride slowed, and the narrator said, “Shravan had to cross a wide river.

He carefully placed his feet on stones, making sure his parents were safe.” The floor beneath them began to move like a gentle wave.

Cherry's eyes widened. "Oh no, it feels like we're stepping on slippery rocks!" Chikoo balanced himself. "Hold on tight, Cherry! This is tricky!"

The ride continued, showing Shravan crossing the river with determination. At one point, the river seemed to swell, and the water level on the screen rose higher.

Cherry shouted, "Look out! The river is getting stronger!" The ride shook, mimicking the currents of the river.

Chikoo grabbed the side rail. "Wow! This is tough! But look at Shravan—he's not giving up!" They felt a light mist as if water sprayed on them. Cherry giggled. "Is it raining? This is so real!"

Chapter-6

SHRAVAN CROSSING A VAST DESERT

As they moved past the river, the scene changed to a vast desert with scorching heat. The ride heated slightly, and Cherry wiped her forehead.

“Phew, it’s so hot! Shravan had to walk through this too?” Chikoo nodded. “Yup, and without any shade! But he kept going. Look how determined he is.”

The narrator continued, “Shravan’s journey was filled with hardships, but his devotion never wavered. ”The ride took a sharp turn, and they felt a gust of wind.

Cherry pointed, “Look, a storm! He’s battling a sand-storm now! ”The screen showed Shravan shielding his eyes from the sand as he struggled to move forward. The ride wobbled, and the wind blew harder. Chikoo exclaimed, “This is amazing! We’re feeling everything he felt.”

Chapter-7

A SACRED TEMPLE

After what seemed like a long journey, the ride finally slowed down, and the scene transformed into a beautiful sunset, with Shravan reaching his destination – a sacred temple.

Cherry sighed with relief. “We made it! But that was tough. I can’t believe Shravan did all that!” Chikoo nodded, breathless. “And he did it all out of love for his parents.”

The ride came to a stop, and a young boy nearby turned to his mother and said, “Mommy, I could barely handle this ride. How did Shravan carry his parents for real?” Chikoo smiled at Cherry, “That’s exactly what I was thinking.” Cherry nodded. “It must have taken so much strength, both in his body and his heart.”

Chapter-8

THE SOUVENIER SHOP

After finishing the ride they passed a souvenir shop and they loved the nik naks in the shop, but best of all they loved the statues made of Srawan Kumar carrying his parents in two baskets on each side of him with a pole on his shoulders.

Just then, Chikoo noticed the sky outside was getting darker. “Oh no, Cherry! It’s late. We’d better get home before Mom and Dad start worrying.” Cherry agreed. “Let’s go!” They waved their magical hands and, in a blink, were back home.

Chapter-9

DISCUSSION ON SHRAWAN KUMAR

At dinner, Chikoo eagerly shared, “Mom, Dad, we just had the most incredible ride about Shravan Kumar! He carried his parents everywhere, across jungles, mountains, and even a storm!” Cherry added, “But why didn’t he just use a car or something?” Raj, their father chuckled, “Well, back then, there were no cars or buses. But Shra-van’s devotion was so great that he carried his parents on his shoulders to fulfill their wishes.” Simran , their mother smiled, “It was his love and respect for them that gave him the strength.” Cherry’s eyes sparkled, “Wow! That’s true love. When we grow up, we’ll look after you just like Shravan did!” Raj and Simran , their parents , hugged them warmly, “That’svery sweet, kids. Remember, it’s your love that makes all the difference.”
